Housing or Pump Priming?

R ISING pressure to have the federal government and other agencies widen the flow of investment capital into NHA loans drew a response from Ottawa yesterday, when Works Minister Walker an-nounced $25,000,000 in additional funds would be placed at the disposal of the scheme, commencing in September. This provision was immediately attacked in construction and other circles, on the ground that it is too limited and too restricted in its application. Some argued that the extension of mortgage loans to individuals in still higher income brackets would do little to cure the disabilities of the present situation. However it may be approached, however, will pump priming do what slackened demand in the market has failed to

There is also another side to the question. If the rate of dwelling construction in Canada should be taken beyond the ordinary capacity of the real estate market to absorb new houses this would not stimulate the economy, and could well act the other way. It is significant that across the country assisted housing projects are being completed in many more instances than fresh starts are being made. The demand for housing at the public end noticeably has lessened, while in some communities dwellings already completed are not moving any too readily into private

This is a situation which can scarcely be forced by pump priming. The natural demand for new housing should be a self-regulatory market. The Dominion formerly had taken authority at budget time to provide existing cover for housing loans, with some leeway in the event of that provision being found inadequate. Now at mid-summer some of this reserve is being used. Sufficient or not, the $25,000,000 extension is not likely to alter the basic situation.

Nor is the employment-giving aspect of the move in better case the federal government felt it had to pick up some slack in the employment rosters, mid-summer was hardly the time to choose for a very limited start. With five months of the year to go, it is possible that Canada's domestic position may improve and so generate its own initiative. Export trade is holding up well, imports are more balanced, while interpretable and in the content of the while investment capital coming into the country does not seem to slackened. Pump priming should have been kept as a last resort, when a need for it had been established by clearer portents than any much

Canada and British Columbia have cause to be proud of their representatives at the 1960 shoot last week. It was a New Westminster man, former army sergeant Gunnar Westling, who was chaired in traditional ceremony as the winner of the Queen's Prize; scoring 280 out of a possible 300 points, and leading the large field of no fewer than 1,800 competitors. That was the perform-

One of them was from this city, and Victorians will read with pleasure how Mrs. Eileen Learoyd not only shot her way into the final but led all other woman competitors in the Commonwealth. In addition, during last week's Bisley meet, she won another separate trowhich together with her Queen's Hundred badge singles her out for all time as a premier woman marksman.

This newspaper can perhaps be pardoned for feeling a special measure of pride in such a fine achievement, since she is a working member of the Colonist editorial staff. It was as a private entry at Bisley, also, that she made her way to the Bisley range; although she is well known here as a rifleshot at the Heal's Range and is an officer in the CWAC. It was thus her privilege to contribute greatly to the fine showing of Canada at this year's Bisley gathering, which culminated in the splendid bid of Mr. Westling for the chief prize of all.

may be elected the No. 1 and No. 2 citizens of their country should be as different as possible in background and outlook to attract the ballots of as large and as disparate a group of voters as possible. * * *

Kennedy and Johnson have one main thing is common. Both are wealthy.

Apart from that there are differences Kennedy is a Roman Catholic, an easterner from Massachusetts and a big city resident. Johnson is Protestant, a southerner from Texas he prefers to call himself a southwesterner and a country man.

In politics Kennedy tends to be classified as a liberal, although he worked prominently for the passage of a bill last year to curb labor union powers; while Johnson is usually considered to be a conservative, although he guided through Congress this year a bill aimed at improving the voting rights of Negroes.

Besides placating the interests of Democrats who include union chiefs, conservatives, Negroes and intellectuals, the combination of Kennedy and Johnson attempts to bridge the gap between the north and the south.

* * * *
Although some observers feel that the south is losing political influence, it quite likely that Kennedy would not feel certain of victory in November if south erners considered themselves utterly solated. The choice of Kennedy and the adoption of a bold campaign policy to improve Negro rights had already caused them some dismay. The selection of Johnson for the No. 2 spot is believed to be certain to mollify this resentment.

Those who know Johnson are saying that he might well use the vice-presider in a way not attempted by others who have held the job. He could try to keep the reins of power as the presiding officer in the Senate, instead of handing them over to his successor as majority of shoes—and ships—and seal-wax—of cabbages and kings." By TOM TAYLOR

DON'T say that the sports page is the first I turn to of a Colonist orn, but liking my athletics aes thetically I make a point seldom to miss it. The joys of life include the quiet personal interests to which one's bent inclines

and, among others, sports news enlivens my day. The morn was specially brightened therefore when I read that the Vancouver boy, Harry Jerome, had beaten the world's 100-metre record in the Olympic trials. There is many a slip betwixt the cup and the lip, or I should say betwixt the starting block and the fin-ishing tape, but right away I envisaged Canada's first gold medal being presented at the forthcoming Olympic Games in Rome. Since we do not set the heather too much on fire in these international contests this caused my breakfast somehow to taste better. Counting chickens in advance is not always a profitable practice but this mainland lad in recent months has stamped himself as among the world's best sprinters; there is ample warrant for thinking he will cause "O Canada" to be played in the Eternal City this summer. Incidentally, if so I hope the refrain will match the rapid tempo of his feet; the customary home-played dirge would be small compliment to someone who had just run the fastest race.

It was gratifying, also, to read that the younger Victoria boy, Lynn for second place in the trials. This is another grand sprinter. It has been his fate of late to follow close on the heels of Jerome in several races, but one of these days he will take to the front. He might even do that in Rome, who knows, but in any case there is the alluring prospect in this one event alone of Canada capturing both a gold and silver medal. That other Island runner, Terry Tobacco, might complete a triumphant trio by victory or placement in his 400-metre speciality. Victory at the Olympiads is not essential even if these days national prestige tends to suggest that it is. The thing surely is to put up a good show, one that will win respect from one's rivals. Incidentally at least that was the credo of the Olympic Games when these were revived in 1896; there being no cold war then of course. I know about that element called the will-to-win and also about 'gamesmanship" - really a dubious term - but after all if only certain winners entered for the Olympic Games these would be pretty small athletic affairs. The Italians, for instance, would not be building the myriad tracks and stadiums they are readying for the 1960 Olympiad.

Some nations fare rather poorly Olympiad after Olympiad, but in their sporting tries they typify the real spirit of athletic competition. It ouldn't be much fun, or of worthwhile interest, if the Games were left only to the few countries which cur rently dominate the athletic scene More credit indeed to the states of lesser Olympic renown for never giv ing up. Mind you it is nice to win. nevertheless, and that is why my breakfast seemed brighter when I read about Harry Jerome and Lynn Eves. It cannot be said either that Canada doesn't keep on trying in spite of lean years, so that a double victory would be all the more a welcome and deserved change.

Washington Angle

A Withering Force

By MARQUIS CHILDS

So much of what happened in Los Angeles seems almost ludicrously irrelevant against the backdrop of the fearful sweep of events in the far corners of the earth. It was as though an oldfashioned Fourth of July picnic was being held in the midst of a hurri-

The words spoken

the delegates and their leaders were often brave words, professedly bold words. But before the ink was dry they were out of date. From Cuba, from Leopoldville, from London, Moscow, Washing ton came the roar of revolutionary change moving at a pace so fast that the time-worn machinery of a political convention could not hope to keep up with it.

There is another reason why what was said and done in Los Angeles had for those present and participat ing seemed to be extraneous and even pointless. This is not so much be cause from the start a tight, shrewd organization was advertised as having things under control.

But more than ever before the Democratic convention seemed to be a colossal stage show for the benefit of television. The three big, buntingdraped islands on which the TV cameras were mounted dominated the scene in the arena, blocking the view, one would guess, of a third to a half of the delegates seated on the

The lights beating down on the platform and on the delegation chairmen from time to time were a fierce kind of solvent. They had a withering force. The machine itself is so enormous, so complicated, that what comes out of it is bound to seem dwarfed and unimportant.

In the solvent of the relentless camera not only words but reputations were leeched away.

The curbs applied by television for the vast unseen audience were real enough. Young Senator Frank Church, the keynoter, had learned his keynote speech by heart. But he was told by the managers of the show that he would have to read it from the teleprompter rather than recite it from memory, since only by reading it off a movable tape would he present the correct angle to the cameras.

Perhaps all that one can say, honefully, is that we have not yet learned to live in this strange new world. The Gettysburg address read from a teleprompter might not have gone unnoticed as it did on that memorable occasion when the popular orator of the time captured the plaudits. But the words spoken by Lincoln had the sound of immortality, which is why they have lived.

Elizabethan Lute Music

N a recent BBC broadcast, Robert Spencer described his discovery last year of a unique manuscript of lute music written about 350 years age, which throws light on the sort music played in Shakespeare's Spencer's curosity had been aroused by references to a mysterious Weld lute book, listed as formerly in the possession of Lord Forester, whose family name was Weld-Forester. Lord Forester gave Spencer permission to search library and the strongroom at hiscountry house at Willey Park, near Shrewsbury. As soon as he opened the strongroom door Spencer caught sight of a pile of books in a corner, and half way down it a volume bound in dark brown leather, untitled the sort of book he was looking for With excitement, he pulled it out and found that the cover was stamped in gilt capitals 'IOHN WELDE'. Inmusic dating from the reign of the first Elizabeth. The book happened to open at a piece by Robert Johnson who wrote some of the incidental music for the original productions of Shakespeare's plays.

A tablet in the church on the Willey Park estate gave Spencer a lead from which he traced the biography of Sir John Weld, who went to the Middle Temple to study law in 1600 and later became Town Clerk of London, an office he held for more than 50 years.

"In Elizabethan England the lute was the most popular solo instru-ment," Spencer said, "it accompanied songs and played with violins and recorders.'

The 39 compositions in Sir John Weld's lute book consisted of duets, fantasias, and dance pieces, ranging for popular songs.

HOW do you pick a good melon?
I was always taught to feel the end of the melon; and if it is soft, it is ripe.

"No." savs an Italian fruit store proprietor of my long acquaintance. "All it means, if the end is soft, is that more customers have squeezed it than the other ons on display.

It drives me crazy to see the ladies bending over the melons, giving them a firm poke with their th You take ten ladies with strong thumbs, and they can make every melon in the basket ripe. The tenth lady buys the most-poked melon, takes

"Well," I asked, "how do you tell when a melon is ripe?" "There is no way," said the fruit man sadly. "With melon as with life, you are usually disappointed." When I was a boy, however, fifty years ago, and at least four houses in every city block grew musk melons in their backyard gardens, the way you told the ripe ones was by smell. After dark, as you cauisly climbed the fence and crawled on hands and knees in the musk melon patch, you simply bent down and sniffed like a dog. The Army's Big Gripe

CAMP GAGETOWN, N.B. On a 20 hour visit to this huge, $100 millions army camp where more than 5,000 regular solhundred militia are training, I could only look quickly and listen attentively. That doesn't qualify me to pronounce on army's training, weapons, leadership, morale, or present role. But I got strong impress

One is that the atomic era hasn't made much difference to our troops. I could see that as I joined the third platoon of a company of the Black Watch advancing afoot across 800 yards of berry-blue moose pasture.

One-fifty-five millimetre shells sighed overhead, from our guns 4,000 yards back, and exploded on a ridge ahead of us that was held by "enemy troops." On our right flank, our Centurion V's locked their steel track plates into the soft ground and spat at the ridge, their cherry red tracers disappearing into the maelstrom churned by the 155 shells. Ahead of us one-pound charges exploding in the semi-muskeg billowed acrid smoke and rained debris on us. Wires from a "ripple board" at our push-off point fired the charges in a pre-arranged pattern to simulate "incoming mail," as they call enemy artillery fire. We could feel the blast waves, we were that close.

We took the ridge in a soaking rain, and watched the troops dig in and concentrate their impressive firepower-their 'new FN automatic and semi-automatic rifles, and their new Browning machine guns on enemy targets that bobbed up in the interval. Tanks raced noisily up on both flanks to add their firepower. A lieutenant called up artillery support with his walkie-talkie.

It was World War II all over again except the weapons and equipment were superior, and during the advance the dispersal of our troops was emphasized, in case the enemy used tactical nuclear weapons.

The officers were pleased, "It went off very well," said Brig. E. D. Danby of New Westminster, officer commanding 3 Infantry Brigade

"Except that the guy who co-ordinated the weather fell down on the job," added a colonel. The officers had made a fetish of ignoring the rain. Danby kept his bush jacket sleeves rolled up, and none of the other officers cared to chicken out by rolling theirs down.

The lieutenant ordered his platoon to "Pick up the brass"—that is, the cartridge cases of the rounds fired from their rifles and machine guns. I joined in this brass foraging. "That's the Black Watch-always pickin' up the brass," a soldier muttered in an attempt at a humorous double mean-

This kind of training is fine for a limited war-anything, say, up to another Korea. It is useless for an allout nuclear war because, despite any ground fighting by NATO forces in being in Europe, the war would be by both sides, probably-in the first few days of nuclear attack by bombers and intercontinental missiles. In a nuclear war the home army's role would be national survival, formerly called civil defencea role for which the regular force trains in winter,

The army's big gripe is that it has no nuclear capability. It wants tactical atomic arms like the long-promised missile-currently the Honest John, after washout of plans for the Lacrosse. Defence Minister Pearkes has stated that the army will get missiles if the need arises. To the army this is not good enough.

'So we wait until we're in a war, and then we go to Washington and ask for them!" a major said bitterly.

Fed up with tipping most of the hotel staff for the most trifling services, a guest determined to call a halt. There came a knock at his door, "Who is it?" he asked.

"Very well," said the determined guest, "just slip it under the door. "I can't sir, it's on a tray."

An optimist and pessimist went into business together. Trade flourished.

"Weil," said the optimist, "we've had a wonderful month. It's been a constant run of customers."

"Yeah," answered the pessimist dourly, "but look at those front doors. If they keep shoving through them at this rate, the hinges won't last another week."

Mothball Flag

which had evidently been in mothballs for many years. What the general opinion regarding it is I do not know, but to me it looks an untidy mess. In the design of a flag, more than most things, "plain and good" seems to be what is needed. This one, with thick wavy lines and flames sprouting from nowhere does not give one the satisfaction we should get from looking at a flag—any flag. We do not need spatterings of dogwood and maple leaves and

How about our B.C. flag having a motto, something like that of the City of London "Domine dirige nos" for when were we more in need of direction and guidance than at the present time of confusion and uncertainty? It is high time that the Public Utilities Commission and the Chamber of Commerce were doing something about this monopoly situation.

Many years ago the PUC set a surcharge of one cent many years ago the POC set a surenarge of one cent a gallon to meet the cost of moving oil to the Island. It was purely an arbitrary rate—just one cent a gallon. Nobody ever looked into it. Now, with the present methods of bringing barges from Ioco in huge quantities, the actual cost is only around one-hundredth of a cent, or less. The oil companies pocket the difference, while the Island consumer goes on and pays and pays.

Actually, it costs no more to deliver gasoline on the Island than in most of the Fraser Valley and even some Island than in most of the Fraser valley and sections in Greater Vancouver itself.

Premier Bennett is out to do the right thing. He should jack up his PUC—or junk it.

YOURS A PUTTED "COUNTRY COTTAGE" ROAD? TRY IT! Chevrolet brings a new level of comfort to your holiday travel. Those picturesque camping trails and concession roads suddenly become fun to drive again. The secret: full-coil suspension. The result: an altogether new kind of smoothness that floats you along every fun-filled mile of the way.

(THE KIND YOU DRIVE)

CHEVY'S SUPERIORIT

The very moment you open the door of a Chevrolet you'll feel that you've left the low-priced field far behind you. Extra features like armrests, twin sunshades, cigarette lighter, footoperated parking brake . . . all these and many more are part of the bargain when you go Chevrolet.

And here's the truly amazing reason for Chevrolet's first place in sales. It costs no more than other cars in its field, less than a lot of 'em, yet you won't find Chevrolet's brand of value anywhere else. That means you'll save now on Chevrolet's low price, and save on your next car when trade-in time finally rolls around. Why not check all the facts before buying? Visit your Chevrolet dealer and take the full measure of Chevrolet's superiority. Do it today!

WHERE THE GOING'S GOOD - IT'S BETTER IN CHEVROLET - That's part of the secret of Chevrolet's success. Even the long sweeping stretches of super highway are more enjoyable. All you have to do is settle back into those comfortable Chevrolet seats and watch the miles flick by. And you'll find that it's the longest distance between gas-stops in a Chevrolet.

PICK OUT A TRAFFIC TANGLE ... AND PICK YOUR WAY THROUGH IT. Chevrolet's surprising that way. You're certain from its comfort, and confidence on the roads that this is a big car. But, in fact, its turning circle and overall dimensions make it one of the very easiest of full-sized cars to thread through the city. Put the fun back into your driving, today. How Poppy Got Pink

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Every year I find myself becoming just a little more interested in the Oriental Poppies and I try, whenever I can afford it, to add one new variety to my collection every year. Last month I spent quite a bit of time watching the development and opening of the fat, opulent buds—crinkled petals first, then a fluted cup and finally a flat, flamboyant flower often as much as seven inches across.

At one time the name Oriental

At one time, the name Oriental At one time, the name Oriental Poppy was synonymous with a bold scarlet flower. Nowadays, we can have orange, pink, lavender and some glorious white blooms as well. The break-through which gave us a race of new colors was accomplished by Amos Perry, a well-known English nurseryman and plant breeder, and the story of his succes is rather amus-

Mr. Perry had been trying for some years to get away from the everlasting scarlet shade in his popples and, to this end, he imported a number of species from Persia, crossing them with Papavar Orientalis, the ordinary red Oriental Poppy. The results were disappointand the plants from the seeds so and the plants from the seeds so obtained grew with great vigor, char-acteristic of first-generation hybrid plants, but when they came into bloom, all the flowers were scarlet. Nothing daunted, he crossed these back to the original parents and tried again and soon he had whole fields of seedling plants under test.

In the meantime, he had to stay in business by selling nursery stock and among the plants he sold were many of his Oriental Poppies from his test fields, some of which had not reached flowering age. It must have worried him at times wordering it any of him at times, wondering if any of these plants, departing from his nursery, could be the long-awaited color break.

Sure enough, one day a customer turned up with a bitter complaint. He had purchased an Oriental Poppy plant from Mr. Perry the previous year, expecting it to bloom in the normal scarlet shade, but he was disappointed—the stupid thing had nothing but pink flowers on it! He demanded that the nursery take it. demanded that the nursery take it back and replace it with a normal red-flowered plant!

That one plant, back in Mr.

Perry's hands from a dissatisfied customer, became the famous salmon-pink Mrs. Perry and was parent to at least six other varieties and colors, including Perry's White and Thora

The growth cycle of the Oriental Poppy is always a little puzzling to novice gardeners and every summer I get a lot of letters complaining that the plants are dying. This is perfectly normal—the plant dies right down to the ground shortly after the flowers are finished and the roots take a little midsummer nap. Some time in August, a new little some time in August, a new little tuft of leaves appear. Given a mild winter, these will live over into spring but, even if they winter-kill, no harm is done and new foliage appears in

The ideal time to buy and plant Oriental Poppy roots is during their midsummer resting period, for the roots can be moved with very little setback while dormant. Second choice is in the early fall and these will be-roots which the nurseryman dug and packed in July. In planting, space them a good 18 inches apart to afford lots of elbow room, selecting a spot where puddles will not lie in winter.

Blond Men Pale Symbols

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)-Blond men, the record shows, have been notoriously sexless in movie history while blonde actresses—the Grables, Mon-roes and Novaks—have long been the screen's sex symbols.

Why this lack of screen sex appeal among blond male stars?

One producer, who wants to remain nameless because he hates con troversy, says that in his 35 years in Hollywood he can remember only one blond star who excited women -both on and off screen. That was the late Leslie Howard.

Blondes and even freckle-faced redheads like Van Johnson can make

One moviemaker blames it all on the black and white camera. "Blond males, no matter how virile they are offscreen, are washed out in the black and white film. That's why we usually use a blond to por-tray stupidity or crazed villainy. Had Richard Widmark been black-haired, I doubt if he ever would have got the chance to push that old lady in a wheelchair down a flight of stairs."

Some stars with light complexions have sex appeal — William Holden, Gary Cooper, Burt Lancaster, Kirk Douglas and the late James Deanbut none could be called true blonds.

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Kim Novak scorned her doctor's orders to rest, and went to Mexico instead where she saw a great deal of comedian Cantinflas, star of Columbia's "Pepe," in which the blonde and beauteous actress is a guest star. Errol Flynn's parents asked Pat Wymore to bring their granddaughter Arnella to London in August, after which Pat and daughter go to Majorca to live a while on the boat Flynn loved, the Zaca. Stuart Whitman whizzed in from "Story of Ruth" personal appearances, stayed long enough to kiss his wife and children good-bye, and then flew to Dublin to star in "The Mark" with Rod Steiger and Maria Schell.

The Way of the Worry-Free

There's the high road and the low road - many are the lanes that lead from here to there.

The anxious road. The fretful road. The hazardous road - the rough and the smooth, the swift and the adventurous.

And there are those who think of all of these when they plan to go from here to there. Ask the venturer who leaves his car behind why he rides with Canadian National Railways. Invariably you will find his reason in these half-dozen simple words - It's the way of the worry-free. Luxury, restfulness. Quiet and roomy comfort. The courteous, the gracious air - all of these are there. But beyond these is assurance.

It is this, contrasted with the teeming and relentless traffic of today's highways, that is making a growing number of motorists say -"when it's over 100 miles, I take the train."

Helena Rubinstein's Tree of Life Herbessence

Something old, something new, something tried and all things true—Herbessence, the youngest start on Helena Rubinstein's Tree of Life. This happy mingling of the timeless qualities of herbs with the latest modern scientific developments comes as a liquid that skips lightly over your skin for thorough, thoughtful cleansing by day or night. For centuries famous beautifiers have known the potentiality of herbs, and science has recently confirmed that they contain important enzymes and valuable vitamins. Madame Rubinstein has master-minded their placement into an emulsified form aquiver with such delights as parsley, cucumber and camomile flower. Now you can spread herbal essences easily, smoothly over your face, letting this tonic emulsion loosen dust and oil particles while leaving your skin deeply cleansed and as lightly fragrant as the scent of the herbs that bless it so,

With no end in sight for the current heat waveit's been a month since Victoria had rain—the seashore holds promise of some relief today.

Yesterday, while most of the city sweltered in tempera-tures soaring to the high 80s, the weather station at Gonzales Heights, exposed to a cooling sea breeze, recorded a high of 77.5 degrees.

Weatherman William Mac-kie predicted little change in veather outlook for today. Sunday temperatures ranged between 75 and 87 degrees.

Helena Rubinstein's Tree of Life Herbessence

Something old, something new, something tried and all things true-Herbessence, the youngest start on Helena Rubinstein's Tree of Life. This happy mingling of the timeless qualities of herbs with the latest modern scientific developments comes as a liquid that skips lightly over your skin for thorough, thoughtful cleansing by day or night. For centuries famous beautifiers have known the potentiality of herbs, and science has recently confirmed that they contain important enzymes and valuable vitamins. Madame Rubinstein has master-minded their placement into an emulsified form aquiver with such delights as parsley, cucumber and camomile flower. Now you can spread herbal essences easily, smoothly over your face, letting this tonic emulsion loosen dust and oil particles while leaving your skin deeply cleansed and as lightly fragrant as the scent of the herbs that bless it so. As seen in Harper's Bazaar.
